German

Some 120 million people in the world speak German as their mother tongue. Around nine million people have learned German as a second language. German is an official language in Germany, Austria, Liechtenstein, Switzerland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Italy and the Vatican State (Swiss Guard).

German's not so hard!

Germany

The German flag Germany lies in Central Europe, sharing borders with Denmark, Poland, the Czech Republic, Austria, Switzerland, France, Luxembourg, Belgium and the Netherlands.

The federal capital of Germany is Berlin. With over 82 million inhabitants, Germany is one of the most populous countries in Europe, and is a member of international institutions including the United Nations, the European Union and NATO. As indicated by its membership of the elite G8 group of countries, Germany is also a leading economic power, and indeed the world's number one exporter.

Stuttgart

The coat of arms of Stuttgart

Stuttgart lies in the heart of the Baden-Württemberg region in southern Germany, and has a population of around 600 thousand. The city is renowned as being the home to high-tech companies such as DaimlerChrysler, Porsche and IBM. The region around Stuttgart has one of the highest densities of scientific, academic and research institutions in Germany. Nowhere else in Germany are more patents registered than here, especially in the engineering and IT fields. Over 11% of all research and development expenditure in Germany is invested in the region. As well as its two universities, Stuttgart has six Institutes of the Fraunhofer Society, two Max Planck Institutes and numerous technical colleges and other centers of higher education. Stuttgart is also a great center of culture. Historic palaces, theaters, museums and huge areas of parkland complement the beautiful old city center, which also features one of Germany's longest pedestrian zones.
